WITNESS SAYS A. T. T. FAVORS EXECUTIVES

Claims Pension System Provides More for Those Getting Larger Salaries

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON April 29—Testimony that executives of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co received more favorable treatment under the utility's pension plan than other employes was received today at a communications commission hearing

J A Krug a commission accountant introduced a report in the commission's investigation of the A T & T detailing operations of the pension system

Between 1913 and 1934 the report said 6 000 persons were pensioned and $18,503 118 in benefits were paid out This was an average monthly pension payment of $71

Executives pensioned under the plan Krug said are favored on account of long terms of service and steeper salary trends during their periods of employment

There is no maximum pension provision in the plan

The absence of such a provision operated to extend the greater benefits to the employe with the longer term of service and the larger salary increases.

C. OF C. BLAMES ROOSEVELT FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

Says It's Up to New Deal To Create Jobs by Halt in Spending and New Tax Program

DENOUNCES LEVY PROGRAM

Claims Recent Law and Pending Bill Act To Retard Industrial Expansion

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON April 29 — A leader in the Chamber of Commerce of the United States declared today that it is up to the Roosevelt administration itself to speed the reemployment of idle millions by curbing government spending and changing new deal tax policies

Fred H Clausen of Horicon Wis chairman of the chamber's committee on federal finance said in a speech prepared for delivery today at the chamber's 24th convention

Notwithstanding the repeated challenge of the administration that private industry assume the obligation of reemployment new exactions of government have had the direct effect of retarding that very process

Attacks Tax System

Attacking both the wealth tax act of last year and the pending bill to revise the corporate tax structure he urged that the federal taxing power be returned to its proper function and be limited to the raising of the revenues required for the economical administation of governmen

The chamber he said considers that the outstanding problem that America faces today is the inability to control public expenditures and obtain a balanced federal budget

Business men are much concerned over it he said and that concern is deepened when we realize that there is no convincing general recognition by those in authority of the serious situation

Sees Extremes Extended

Among objections to this year's tax bill he said it would raise the peaks of federal revenue in prosperous years and deepen the valleys in depression would favor well established corporations at the expense of those struggling for a place in the sun and would have seriously depressing effects on the durable goods industry whose activity depends largely upon the availability of capital in the hands of other industries

Alexander Thomson chairman of the Champion Paper Fibre Co of Hamilton O said the workers starkest fear is that of insecurity in their job

Pleading for a recognition of their spiritual rights Thomson held

The company that is willing by whatever method to provide for all possible security in this way has done more than can be done by any other method to alleviate the greatest anxiety that humans can suffer

Politicians Scan Results of Primaries in 2 States

Roosevelt Piles Up Big Lead Over Breckinridge in Pennsylvania, Landon Leads Bay State G O P

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON April 29—Sharp political eyes on Capitol Hill peered intently today at the primary figures of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts seeking an indication of how these great industrial states—with a bloc of 53 electoral votes—will line up Nov 3

Democratic leaders were particularly interested in the Keystone state's preferential primary vote yesterday in which President Roosevelt had his first state wide contest

The chief executive piled up an overwhelming lead over Col Henry Breckenridge anti new deal Democrat.

Mr Roosevelt's vote with 3 774 of the state's 7 983 districts reporting was 360 403 as compared with 19 530 for Breckenridge

Sen. Borah of Idaho unopposed on the Republican ballot in Pennsylvania polled 219 995 votes in 3 515 districts In several counties there was a written vote for Gov Alf M Landon of Kansas former President Hoover and Sen. Vandeberg of Michigan

The vote in Massachusetts yesterday in which Landon received more than four times the combined vote of four other Republicans also attracted interest

Landon Leads in Bay State

Complete returns from Massachusetts 1 529 election precincts in the Republican presidential preference primary give Borah 4 342 Hoover 9 014 Knox 1 710 Landon 76 710 Vandenberg 2 117

The majority of the preference votes in Massachusetts Democratic primary were cast for Mr Roosevelt but no effort was made to tabulate the total immediately

The 33 Republican delegates will go to the Cleveland convention unpledged

The preferential vote in Pennsylvania is not binding on delegates to the two national conventions Party leaders said they expect an uninstructed delegation

Bucks Machine To Win

In four of the Pennsylvania major congressional fights center of interest because of the politically prominent names and varied circumstances they involved these were the results

Michael J Stack incumbent representative bucked the Philadelphia Democratic organization and won renomination from the sixth district

Mrs Cornelia Bryce Pinchot dynamic wife of Pennsylvania's former governor lost her third fight for a seat in the national house vainly seeking the Republican nomination in the fifth district in Philadelphia's mill area

Louis T McFadden outspoken former congressman was defeated in a comeback attempt at the Republican nomination in the 15th district of northeastern Pennsylvania

McNair Loses Out

Major William N McNair Pittsburgh's self styled perennial candidate apparently was defeated for Democratic nomination

Other political activity yesterday included the Democratic state convention in Kansas where the state's 22 party delegates were instructed to vote for President Roosevelt at the national convention in Philadelphia

Mr Roosevelt was hailed by the convention as sincere friend of agriculture and the middlewest The convention criticized what it called the shortsighted and unsympathetic attitude of the Kansas state administration in fighting the insurance of bank deposits"

Criticism of the American Liberty League arch foe of the new deal came last night when Dr James S Hart professor of political science at Johns Hopkins university

In a broadcast address from New York Dr Hart said the nation faces a danger that the so-called American Liberty league will lead us blindly to perpetuate our past in a world the founding fathers never knew"

Governor Defends His Record While Foe in Primary Criticizes Sales Tax

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI O April 29 — Two Democratic candidates for the gubernatorial nomination Gov Martin L Davey and Rep Stephen M Young of Cleveland appeared on the same platform—at different times—last night the one to defend his record the other to criticise the state sales tax

Neither was present while the other spoke before the Hamilton County Women's Democratic club nor did one mention his rival by name Young referring only casually to some things which happen in a Columbus hotel suite devoted himself to the sales tax which he said as our next governor I propose to eliminate as it applies to food clothing and medicine

Davey said he declined to recognize that there is a primary contest May 12 and predicted a Democratic majority in Ohio of between 400 000 and 500 000 in November

This he added applies to national state and local tickets

Earlier Young addressed a Democratic rally calling upon my opponent to tell the source of money used to finance weekly radio talks and asked why is state business transacted in a hotel suite where he said Francis Poulson chairman of the Democratic state central committee holds forth

LEVY CERTIFICATION OK, PROSECUTOR SAYS

County's One-Mill Relief Proposal Filed In Time, Michel Reports

Prosecuting Attorney Paul D Michel today ruled that the one mill levy for poor relief purposes proposed by the board of county commissioners is eligible to go on the ballot at the May 12 primary

The question of whether the resolution calling for the vote had been filed with the board of elections in sufficient time to comply with the state law yesterday was referred to the prosecuting attorney by election officials The question was whether the resolution had to be certified 20 days before the primary

The prosecutor ruled that a statute which became effective last August permitting certification of relief issues 10 days before an election covered the case here

The commissioners are asking for a one mill levy for two years to provide funds for the county relief program The levy is estimated to raise $54 000 a year

CLEVELAND O April 29—Weatherman Ralph C Mize is studying higher mathematics at Cleveland college on the theory that there will be important changes in his profession in the future

Mize is taking a course in analytical geometry to aid in weather forecasting He is planning a course in calculus next year

The Cleveland weatherman's formal education stopped after the eighth grade His mathematical knowledge comes from borrowed text books

When I entered the government meteorological service we didn't think much about the value of mathematics" he said But to advance you had to take examinations and preparations for those practically amounted to a college education in themselves

There isn't any doubt but what much of our forecasting in the future will be based on conditions in the upper air rather than on the surface. To understand what they are talking about you should have analytical geometry and calculus"

Ohio's Supreme Tribunal Bars Two Cincinnati Delegate Candidates from Ballot

District Board Holds Two Aspirants Lack Necessary 100 Signatures

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O April 29—Sen William E Borah-for-President forces lost a round in the supreme court today in their battle to line up Ohio's delegates to the Republican national convention

The court held that two delegate candidates in the first and and Second (Cincinnati) districts were not entitled to a place on the May 12 ballot

It refused Alvin H Rowe candidate in the first district a writ of mandamus to force the district election board to place his name on the ballot

Under an agreement on the court action the ruling also affected Melvin Hart candidate for delegate in the second district

This left the Borah forces, who are contesting with Robert A Taft of Cincinnati Ohio's favorite son candidate for the Republican convention delegates with only 37 candidates for the state's 52 delegates

The district election board had contended that Rowe and Hart lacked the necessary 100 signatures to qualify their petitions Rowe maintained that five signatures were sufficient

Names Omitted

At a hearing on the mandamus suit last week it was brought out that the district election board had ordered ballots printed without the names of either Rowe or Hart

Forces of the Idaho senator who will speak here Thursday night and make a final campaign swing around the state next week now have qualified 30 district and seven delegate-at-large candidates

The name of Clarence D Klemme also a Borah candidate for delegate in the second district previously had been withdrawn

MEASURE GOES BEFORE SENATE

Complete Change in Levy Against Corporations Aim of New Legislation.

MORGENTHAU TO TESTIFY

Proposal Would Provide Graduated Excise on Firms' Undistributed Earnings

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON April 29—The administration's $803 000 000 tax bill was passed by the heavily Democratic house today over opposition votes of the Republican minority

Speaker Byrnes announced the vote as 267 to 93

The bulky measure designed to raise funds to meet bonus and farm relief costs and embracing a complete revision of the corporate tax system now goes to the senate where the finance committee already has begun its consideration

Morgenthau To Talk

Tomorrow Secretary Morgenthau will testify before the committee at its first public hearing

A somewhat warmer reception awaited the measure in the senate committee than it would have received last week Criticism of the proposal was less in evidence among the Democratic committee members and many of them were forecasting its approval

The major feature of the bill was a tax on corporation income graduated on the basis of earnings withheld from distribution to stockholders

Linked with application of the normal 4 per cent income tax on dividends it is expected to bring in $623 000 000 additional to help meet President Roosevelt's request for farm and bonus funds

Vote on Party Lines

The vote on passage, cleft along party lines was a mere formality which sealed the tentative approval given the bill yesterday

By laying figures and other data before several doubting members of the senate finance committee treasury tax experts had sought to show them that the corporate tax chief feature of the new bill, actually would raise the $623 000 000 its advocates estimate The senators indicated they were satisfied

Meanwhile in another section of the capitol Postmaster General Farley faced a fight because of his order barring from the mails contests backed by Mrs Oliver Harriman New York society leader, and Alfred E Smith Jr

Contending that the contests were lotteries Farley last night directed his order against the National Conference for Legalizing Lotteries Inc and the Golden Stakes Advertising Co Mrs Harriman is president of the former organization while Smith serves as vice president and counsel of Golden Stakes

Quickly the two concerns prepared to fight in the courts

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 29—Rep. Marion A. Zioncheck of Seattle, Wash., married Rubye Louise Nix here yesterday but only after negotiating a $2 loan from a deputy clerk to get the marriage license.

The congressman, figure in recent clashes with Washington police and courts, was married by Rev. Paul R. Diehl to the pretty 21-year-old Texarkana, Ark., stenographer in the living room of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church rectory. Zioncheck is 35.

Lawrence L. Merrill, deputy clerk of the court, lent him the money.

"He asked me if I would take his watch as security," Merrill said. "I said that I wouldn't, but that I would let him have the $2. He told me he would see me sometime."

Rev. Mr. Diehl declined to say whether Zioncheck had paid him anything.

"That question has been disposed of," he said. "I feel that the marriage was a sacred thing, and I believe he feels the same way. He took it pretty seriously."

For some time Zioncheck refused to confirm or deny he was married. To all inquiries he gave the same reply as he did to capital police last week when they accused him of driving 70 miles an hour.

"Who, me?" he would ask.

Every time the blue-eyed bride tried to reply, with—"Say, I'm wearing the pants here!"

Zioncheck began the day by applying for a marriage license in the District of Columbia. He discarded these plans an hour later when he could not find the preacher listed on the certificate.

Motoring to nearby Annapolis he quickly took out papers and went around the corner to Rev. Mr. Diehl's home where the ceremony was performed without witnesses, permissible under Maryland law.

Returning to his office he was met by a score of news men.

"Are you married?" they asked.

"Now, isn't that a funny thing," he replied, "I wonder who could think such a thing."

By this time the bride had reported for work at the accountant's office of the PWA. She readily admitted the marriage and said it was the result of a whirlwind courtship.

She said they were "vague about honeymoon plans." She has asked for a trip to the West Indies or Bermuda and thinks the bridegroom will consent.

After meeting Mrs. Zioncheck at her office, Zioncheck drove to his apartment which overlooks the Washington zoo. News men followed him. There he donned an Indian headgear, demonstrated his prowess at table tennis and mixed up a batch of stew.

"Why don't you forget this marriage stuff," he said, "and promote a table tennis match for charity between me and whoever is the amateur champ. Boy, I'm good."

The bride, in the meantime, stood by and giggled.

As fatigued news men were leaving the Zionchecks he was getting out his golf clubs.

"I know it's almost dark," he said, "but what do I care?"

Waving to their audience he and the bride climbed into their automobile and zoomed away into the dusk.

During the Christmas holidays he was arrested for disorderly conduct after he captured the telephone switchboard of his apartment house in the early morning hours and called up as many of his fellow tenants as he could reach.

Traditional Pathways.

In a letter to all affiliated unions, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, urges continuance of the federation's traditional non-partisanship in the coming campaign, of withholding support from any specific candidate or party until after nominees have been determined and party platforms published. After it has such information available, executive council of A. F. of L. may indorse specific candidates as occasionally it has done in the past.

Apparently, though, Mr. Green's word is not going to be the law. Already insurgents, under John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, have announced their intention to be partisan. George L. Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen's union, working closely with Mr. Lewis, has formed Labor's Non-Partisan League to put "A. F. of L. unions on record for President Roosevelt."

It has been the federation's policy to analyze published platforms and to look into the records and qualifications of nominees. Any recommendations following such study have been temperately phrased with the intent to avoid antagonizing nominees who may be elected without A. F. of L. indorsement. The federation often has thus escaped the embarrassment of backing the "wrong" man and has felt free to present its case to successful candidates. That is good political strategy.

Lewis and Green forces have clashed over the craft versus industrial unionism issue and now they appear to be enlarging the rift on political grounds. In treading traditional pathways, Mr. Green appears to be choosing the wiser course.

Common Objective.

Once more President Roosevelt has repeated his claim that the new deal wing of the Democratic party holds exclusive rights to the desire to bring about a more abundant life in the United States. His speech to the National Democratic club in New York City Saturday night was a plain statement to that effect.

There never has been any argument about the declared purposes of the new deal. Its desire to raise the national standard of living is wholly admirable. Politicians and political parties may disagree as to the means of making the population happier and more secure, but they always agree on their common objective.

The issue in the presidential campaign is not the purpose of the new deal, as Mr. Roosevelt defines it, but the methods it has chosen to reach the objective of a more abundant life. The country is by no means sure the Roosevelt administration is on the right track, despite its leader's assurance that it is "on its way" in the right direction.

In a republic, criticism and dissent are fully as essential as positive leadership. Millions of citizens, partisans and non-partisans, are dubious of the possibility of reaching their common goal by employing the particular leadership which the Roosevelt administration has provided since March, 1933. They are furnishing, whether Mr. Roosevelt likes it or not, a balance wheel for government.

Their expressions of doubt and disagreement do not mean they are interested in a less admirable objective than the President's. They are trying to discover some more workable way of reaching the same objective. It would be generous, possibly even helpful to his own political cause, if President Roosevelt were to admit sometime that the opposition, also, is not entirely without idealism.

Yes and No.

There continues to be evidence that the United States has not surrendered unconditionally its short-lived position as world leader of the lighter than air industry. Loss of the Akron and Macon shook national confidence, but apparently did not destroy the individual confidence of men close to development of those two unlucky ships.

*Germany's success with the Graf Zep*pelin and prospects of still greater success with the new von Hindenburg suggest pointedly that this country's disheartening experiences may have been caused by inexperience, rather than by any inherent weakness in the theory and practice of airship construction and operation.

It is a matter which resolves itself finally into a question of the nation's tolerance of experimentation. Unfortunately, the cost of an airship discourages private development, unless public aid is available. Obviously, many governmental officials would like to take a chance on one, or perhaps two, more airships. However, with an eye for public opinion, they are taking a yes and no attitude.

In the meantime, Germany owns and operates the world's two greatest airships. France has its Normandie, and Great Britain has its Queen Mary to satisfy their desire for leadership in size. The United States, which is alternately amused and envious because it isn't a conspicuous "first" in either watercraft or aircraft, may yet yield to temptation and try to do something about one or both.

The Sweat of Every Man.

Tax experts and congressmen may grow gray trying to wrest some sense out of the 248 page tax bill, but careful observers can detect the *skeleton of confused Rooseveltian philosophy in this ill advised tax*ation proposal, as James P. Warburg told members of Philadelphia's Union League club.

*At the moment it is not important to re*view President Roosevelt's campaign speeches and then paint a sorry picture of broken promises, but it is revealing to recall Oct. 19, 1932 when Mr. Roosevelt, then a candidate, speaking in Pittsburgh, declared that no tax system could be devised which would actually soak the rich because "taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors." Similarly, it is illuminating to remember January, 1935, when the President asserted he did not wish any new taxes enacted in that session, and then to recall June of the same year when he demanded enactment of higher income and inheritance taxes as well as a new graduated corporation tax.

The present tax bill aims to put a heavy tax upon undistributed corporate earnings and to remove exemption of corporate dividends from the customary tax. It appears to be consistent with Mr. Roosevelt's deep-seated desire to "make little ones out of big ones," to smash big corporations—but it is so framed that it will never achieve those objectives.

Instead, as Mr. Warburg pointed out, the bill is likely to aggravate rather than ameliorate the business cycle, and is almost certain to foster a monopolistic tendency in business. It will aggravate depression tendencies because it will virtually force corporations to disperse, through dividends, those large surpluses which "acted as a cushion against the full impact of the recent depression." There will be no such cushions next time. It will encourage monopoly because present surpluses are not to be taxed and the large, well cushioned corporations now existent will have an immense advantage over newly formed competitors who will not be able to create surpluses.

The sweat of every man, not corporate perspiration, will pay for this ill advised tax program. If only President Roosevelt would remember the undeniable truth he spoke less than four years ago!

Young Ideas.

Youth must be served—and many thoughtful persons are showing they realize that economic distress of the last few years has struck the younger generation many cruel blows. Something is being done about the matter. Meanwhile, youth will be pleased and flattered to know that its elders are concerned about its problems, but there are no sure signs to indicate that youth will listen unintelligently to blandishments of politicians who are capitalizing on this need for action.

It is estimated there are approximately eight million young persons who have reached voting age since the last presidential election. Since President Roosevelt's majority over Mr. Hoover was slightly more than seven million, these new voters may play a significant part next November, although it cannot be assumed that a big majority will go one way or the other.

*Most reassuring is the belief that a good*ly proportion of these votes will be used as intelligently as the complicated electoral process will permit. High school and college students over the country have been capturing headlines with peace demonstrations and mock political conventions. Many participants in such events are still below voting age, but perhaps they typify the mass of youthful new voters who, possibly stung by the whip of the depression, have begun to think things out for themselves. No longer will Dad's and Mother's politics satisfy just because they have been good enough for Dad and Mother for so many years. Youth, happily, appears to be aroused and ready to serve. Morning after headaches may be the post election lot of many politicians who have tried to take youth's country away from them and give it back to the Indians.

There Is a Limit.

A few more weeks will bring the annual issue over bathing suits to a climax. Already the bathing beauties and beach censors are sniping at each other and making exciting threats about what they intend to do when the summer bathing season really opens.

There's no need to take a position any more on the subject of how much area a bathing suit should cover. The exposers have won their battle; all that remains is to reach the irreducible minimum of coverage, which they are approaching as rapidly as possible.

Still, because there is a limit it still is a matter of curiosity as to what the limit may be. Each season the frontier is moved back an inch or two. Apparently, the last frontier remains to be reached—or have the nudists already colonized it?

House Proves Norris Proposal Right

Representatives' Handling of Tax Bill Upholds Senator's Views on One-House Legislative Body.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1936, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, April 29—Every now and then something happens in national affairs to vindicate the judgment of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska in his concept of representative government as it should be.

Quite unwittingly, the house of representatives has furnished in the last few days the best argument and demonstration of why it might be better for the national legislature to be composed of one house instead of two—a reform which Mr. Norris succeeded in establishing in the legislature of his home state of Nebraska.

The circumstances are these: A tax bill of transcendent importance to the economic and fiscal system of the nation is under consideration. From time to time during the debates, less than a hundred representatives out of the 435 elected have been present on the floor. Also, every member feels that the tax bill *is going to be re*written by the senate. The measure is to be voted on and passed by the house of representatives this week, notwithstanding the fact that a substantial majority knows full well it is never to become law in that present form.

* * *

The American people pay $10,000 a year to each member of the house of representatives, or a total of $4,350,000. They pay $10,000 a year to each of the 96 members of the senate or a total of only $960,000. Obviously, if the members of the house are going to "pass the buck" to the senate and are not going to take the responsibility of writing legislation, there is a big economy possible in having a single house combining the best features of both and with a much smaller membership than now.

The pending tax bill is probably the worst piece of *tax legislation that has been writ*ten in 20 years. Big business gets certain advantages out of it. Small businesses get many penalties out of it and considerable damage. Monopoly is encouraged because weak competitors are hurt by the unequal tax provisions. Businesses of large size with a vested interest in certain fields of industry will be secure against newcomers because of the new tax bill.

But apart from these uneconomic features, the bill is so clumsily written that it will take a tax expert or a lawyer specializing in tax law to help most every business man make out his return. The layman who reads the proposed tax bill and can figure out how to compute the tax is the exception rather than the rule.

Far from being a simplified tax system for business institutions, it is complicated. As for the alleged modifications to help businesses that have debts, as well as contracts to pay off debts instead of dividends, the measure takes care of all debts incurred prior to March 3, 1936, but is silent on future debt contracts.

* * *

This can only mean that companies that wish to borrow money in the future will have to do so under hardships that never have existed before. A company cannot say it will borrow a certain sum and pay off all of it before giving its stockholders dividends. It will have to say to the lender that it can pay only a certain amount and the rest must go to stockholders unless a prohibitive tax is paid.

In other words, the safety of future borrowing processes, for small businesses in particular, will be materially changed by the new tax law if the senate retains what the house proposes.

There are many provisions of the law which will cost a good deal to administer. But the most to the taxpayer to conform to the law will be an increasing item of expense.

The supposition is that the senate will change all this and make it workable. But the question might well be asked why the house of representatives doesn't improve on the hodge-podge offered it by the treasury department and give the senate an idea of what the public reaction to specific parts of the bill is when changes have been made. The house is elected every two years, while only one-third of the senate comes up for election every two years. The senate is not as directly responsive, therefore, to the 1936 election as is the house and the house now can transfer to the senate whatever blame accrues. If there were only one house elected every two years, every member would feel, it is contended, a greater sense of responsibility for the writing of legislation.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, April 29, 1926.

Parents of Marion young people were reported up in arms and filing protests with city officials against return of slot machines to the city. The mayor and his associates were reported in sympathy with the demand to have the machines outlawed.

Members of the Round Table club held their annual guest day party and anniversary tea at the home of Miss Emma O'Brien on East Church street.

Henry True returned from a two-weeks motor trip from Richmond, Va., and White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Pasters of Superior street returned from a fishing trip of several days to Port Clinton and other points on the lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Mayer of Cherry street returned from a trip to New York City and Washington. While in New York they were guests of Miss Stella Blecher and Willard Blecher, former residents of Marion.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday April 29, 1916.

A London dispatch reported that more than 500 persons had been killed in the Irish rebellion and that Sinn Fein leaders had proclaimed a republic.

The British army under General Townshend, composed of 2,970 English soldiers and 6,000 Indians which had been shut up on Kut-El-Amara since early in December, surrendered to the Turks.

It was announced that the Marion County Medical society would maintain an emergency hospital here during the week of the state G. A. R. encampment in June.

Work on the new high school building on West Church street was started after a delay of several months caused by unfavorable weather.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight.

BY PAUL MALLON

Washington, April 29—The best story about business today is that there is no story. Nothing extraordinary appears to be behind the better federal statistics. No unusual situations have stirred an extra vigor in the spring rise.

Merely the cumulative effects of improvement seem to be involved in the better figures for April which will be out in a few days. The tendency of self-acceleration is working on the way up as it did on the way down.

Thus, a thousand little things rather than dominant factors appear to have worked industrial production up to about 97 per cent of normal currently, as may be seen in the following table.

Chart

The figures are collected by the government from various official and private agnecies, and all are official except the current month, which is estimated.

Each figure represents the percentage of normality existing at the times stated, with the average years of 1923-25 inclusive being considered 100 per cent.

Note the extent to which building construction and freight traffic are out of line with general business, as represented by production. Also note the way other factors are lagging from the 100 per cent line.

Industry

The four-month level of production around 93 per cent represents the wide bestirring of the durable goods industries which began late last fall. Recent production increases centered in steel, automobiles and building materials.

The operation of steel mills at around 70 per cent of normal is not due entirely to greater automobile demand, but also to increased demand from railroads and building. The first four months of automobile production this year will be higher than last, in spite of the fact that the new models were brought out in October this season instead of in January as usual. The auto market is standing up. Building, while still less than half of normal, is nevertheless showing employment gains.

Another thing, the April increase was entirely in the manufacturing phase of production, and not in the mining phase, which showed a slight decrease.

Warning

A general European peace agree*ment is expected in the not too* distant future. It will involve Great Britain, France and Germany and will probably be hailed as a new era. It won't be.

The dope here is that Hitler will be willing to sign a peace agreement in which many pledges are made, even concerning the eastern frontier. His idea will be to maintain Britain's friendship and avoid any drastic action by France. The way is now being quietly cleared for bargaining over such an agreement.

But, even if Hitler swears it, no one will believe he has abandoned his eastern hopes. Treaties have been made before—and broken.

The time when he will move eastward is still problematical.

His last Rhineland move was timed to offset a dangerous situation developing between the radical and conservative elements among the Nazis and unrest among the German people. This is not French propaganda. Trustworthy confidential advices say such a situation actually existed.

When his domestic situation dictates again and when the foreign situation is quiet, Hitler will move and move eastward, no matter how many treaties are signed. He may be able to avoid it for a year, and then again he may not.

Rule Change

Thrift may always be a virtue in the copybooks, but not in the relations of the citizen and the government.

Veterans have found that, if they borrowed 50 per cent on their bonus and paid no interest, all the interest due since Sept. 30, 1931, is canceled. But if they paid the interest they owed after that date, they got no credit whatever.

A veteran who borrowed 50 per cent in 1931 and put it out at interest could have picked up about $150 on the deal.

Notes

A close connection seems to exist between the employment index and department store sales. Both are estimated at exactly 86 per cent for April. They have kept close to each other during the depression.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks.

NEW YORK, April 29—Students of athletic calm and poise declare the greatest exponent of these qualities is the 18-year-old New York school girl, Ruth Aarons. She was the recent winner of the national championship in her first table tennis (ping pong) tournament without losing a set.

Miss Aarons is the daughter of a theatrical man and entered the play at Prague for the world title and won easily. No American has ever reached the final rounds as Europeans, especially Hungarians, have long dominated. A crowd that would have filled the Garden looked on starkly amazed.

The girl, who weighs 100 pounds, plays in long trousers and drives a ping pong ball with the speed of a bullet and always smiles as though having heaps of fun. Though a masterful defensive player, she is a relentless attacker and when she "lays one away" her opponent makes no effort to return the shot.

In winning the title in the first attempt she overcame mental hazards that seemed insurmountable. It was her first trip abroad and she went alone into a country where ping-pongists are supreme. And her debut was before 10,000 aliens. She was as cool as ice

Upton Sinclair, next perhaps to Gil Patten of Frank Merriwell fame, was in his formative days one of the prolific nickel novelists. Under the pen name of Ensign Clark Fitch, U. S. N., he recounted weekly the heroic adventures of Cliff Farraday for the True Blue Library. He occupied a top floor bedroom in the West 20's and was a student at the College of the City of New York. He was paid $40 an installment, which gave him more spending money than any person attending his school.

Two of New York's liveliest bon vivants are the Missouri born Brothers McCrory, Sam and Will, who haberdash largely to the stage, screen and literary crowd who like their cravats lustrous and collars wild. Silver haired, edging 60, and sapplly clothes conscious, they make luncheon a daily event in the showy cafes of midtown. And are usually ring siders at the fights, hockey games and other sporting events. Bachelors, they carry on the credo of a yesteryear Broadway — the whooping, story telling era of the extravagant Mizners, Diamond Jim, Paul Armstrong and unforgettable Tad. They are among the last of the thinning valiants who gave enthusiasm to trivia and made the Roaring Forties more than a borrowed nautical term.

Hubbell, [illegible] have a more difficult time nosing out Congressman-at-Large Stephen M. Young.

Young Figures Impressive

In 1934 Gov. Davey beated Sawyer by 22,147 and Pickrel by 31,618 but the same primary Young, running for congress, garnered 293,701 votes or 79,474 more than Davey. While a comparison between the records of a gubernatorial and a congressional candidate may not be considered fair, the dopesters are nonetheless basing 1936 predictions upon the Davey vs. Young feud upon the 1934 figures.

Figures in the 1934 primary show that Cuyahoga county, giving Davey 35,537 votes, cast 69,650, or practically twice as many, for Young. Montgomery county, which limited Davey to 1,963 votes, accorded Young 13,139. Hamilton county gave Davey only 910 and Young 16,423.

There being no Republican fight over the gubernatorial nomination, 1934 figures bear little upon the position of Attorney General John W. Bricker, the lone candidate.

Unopposed for the nomination for attorney general in 1934, Bricker polled 426,560 votes, only 82,368 thousand less than the combined votes of Davey and Young.

Paul M. Herbert of Columbus, and George E. Turner of Cleveland, Republicans, are the only two candidates of either party for lieutenant governor in the May 12 primary who were on the 1934 ticket. In that year Herbert, contesting with Turner, Charles A. Bracher and William F. Jones, won the nomination with a total of 170,805 votes. Turner ran behind 19,442.

Only One Ran in 1934

Only one of the May 12 candidates for nomination as secretary of state appeared on the 1934 ticket, Edward J. Hummel, Cincinnati, Republican. In a field of four, Hummel finished last in 1934 with 72,202 votes to his credit. The nominee, George C. Braden totaled 153,744. Hummel faces a stiff fight in May against H. Earl Griffith, Mt. Gilead publisher, and Dale Stump.

William J. Kennedy of Cleveland, and Dwight L. Matchette of Greenville, will contest for the Democratic nomination.

The fight for the Republican nomination for treasurer will see two rivals of 1934 once again at grips—Harry S. Day of Fremont, incumbent, and Lewis S. Hanford of Cleveland. In 1934 Day won the nomination with a vote of 417,061 to Hanford's 76,580.

Clarence H. Knisley, Bainbridge, secretary to the state utilities commission, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

TWO TYPES OF CROUP

There are two kinds of croup, the simple spasmodic type and the severe type which is really laryngitis. Both kinds must be taken very seriously, for it is often impossible to distinguish one form from another. Simple spasmodic croup is not dangerous, but the other type is very dangerous and requires a doctor's immediate care. Whenever a baby's cry or voice becomes hoarse or weak and husky, a doctor should be called at once, so that he may treat him and give diphtheria antitoxin, if he thinks that the laryngitis may be due to diphtheria.

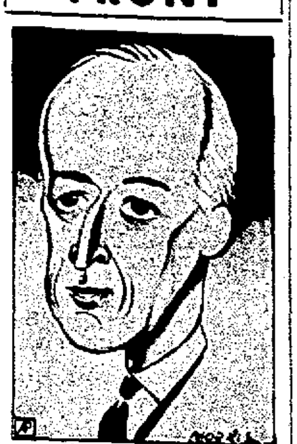
ON THE POLITICAL FRONT



Norman Thomas

By The Associated Press

Norman Thomas (former Marion resident), the one-time Presbyterian minister who heads the Socialist party, thinks Roosevelt will be reelected as "the lesser of two evils." But he won't campaign for the Democratic incumbent.

Instead he will campaign for his own philosophy of government, and continue just as enthusiastic an advocate of his party's ticket as though the patronage plum-bag were immediately around the corner. Twice he has been the Socialist candidate for mayor of New York, once for governor of New York, and twice for president.

But unlike other political speakers he takes little vacation between campaigns. In the last year he has belabored the social security bill, advocated strict neutrality laws, demanded orderly amendment of the Constitution.

He has intimated he would like to seek a congressional seat this year, but no matter what nomination he is given he probably will be heard in many states.

OHIO'S GREATEST MEN

If one will study the youth time of the men of Ohio who became truly great, he will find that in every case circumstance and incident had more to do with the making of them than anything else.

Chase, Ewing, Corwin and Stanton were just normal boys. Chase was a mason's tender; Grant drove the horse in his father's tanbark mill; Ewing caught coons for the coonskin library; Corwin drove a team with the air of a boy who would like to do that all his life.

There is nothing in the story of their lives that indicates that either Grant, or Sherman, or Sheridan ever dreamed that they were to become great military commanders. It is probable that neither Harrison, nor Hayes, nor Garfield, nor McKinley, nor Taft, nor Harding had as boys, a sense of becoming the first magistrate of the country.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must get at the cause—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the intestines, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c. 30c. 60c.—Adv.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Lady in Peril

B[illegible] was real. It flitted [illegible] drive keeping to [illegible] the still dripping [illegible] furtive glance [illegible] moonlight, it passed [illegible] sleeping stone lions, [illegible] steps and rang the [illegible] inside the clamor [illegible] the figure waited, [illegible] further glances [illegible]

[illegible] within, the door [illegible] figure flew in like [illegible] of the night. Old [illegible] staring in the dimly [illegible] a girl in a long [illegible] hood of which was [illegible] hair. She was wet [illegible] and breathed quickly [illegible] been running.

[illegible] began old Timothy, [illegible] half-dressed, having [illegible] telegram or that [illegible] had forgotten his keys.

[illegible] door!" she answered, so imperatively that he obeyed staring at her, glancing up the stair to make sure that Mister Rupert didn't hear and come down. Mister Rupert was in no condition to deal with an emergency. Not that this was going to be that.

"What can we do for you, Miss?"

"I wish to speak with Mr. Joris," she answered.

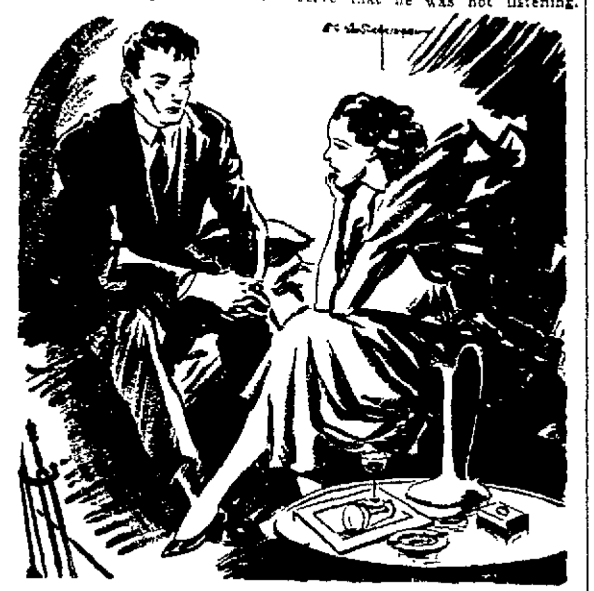
"Sorry, miss," said Timothy. "Mr. Joris is in bed."

Not strictly true, of course Mister Rupert was still sitting in his room, taking his brandy "neat," as Timothy called it.

"No matter," said the girl. "I've got to see him. It's—it's on business, tell him." And as Timothy still hesitated, she thrust her hand inside her cape and drew out a flower, a faded white rose.

"Give him this," she said.

Timothy looked at the token. For his master's own sake he would not have the lady see him now. Something had happened this evening at dinner, something between his master and Miss Fleming. Perhaps this lady was to blame, this dark-eyed young woman in the damp green cloak, who gave a faded rose as her passport, and desired to see him "on business."



"If you've broken a law—" Hope said.

* * *

Timothy weighing the possible consequences of sending the lady away, or exposing the master to her disillusionment, turned to see Mister Rupert descending the stair.

"What's the trouble?" asked Rupert.

Except for a thickness of voice he seemed little different from the Rupert of the early evening. His coat was off, and his shock of black, unruly hair a bit more rumpled, but that was all. Slowly, steadily, he came down the stair, along the hall. Timothy gave the lady back her flower, and withdrew. Somewhere down the hall a door closed behind him. Rupert and the girl looked at each other.

"What is it?" he asked.

"I wanted to see Mr. Joris," she replied.

Rupert made a slight open gesture with his hands.

"Well . . . what do you think of me?"

She looked down, looked away.

"I won't do?" smiled Rupert.

"Oh, yes!" quickly. "Only I thought . . ."

Her eyes came back to him: "It's urgent," she added. "It's business. Can I . . ."

"Come in here," said Rupert, and led the way to the library. Here he lit the lamp with only a little fumbling, and bade the girl sit down. She laid off the hooded, wet cape, and sank into the seat before the fireplace, a deep-cushioned old couch, shaped like a half-moon. Around her face her hair had formed in dark, wet rings. She wore a black dress with a white Puritan collar. Her hands clasped and unclasped, and she shivered, cold without the wrap. There was no fire in the fireplace.

Rupert stood looking at her, seeing her through a red haze.

"You're a lawyer," she said, glancing up at him. "I'm right about that?"

Rupert dropped heavily into the big carved chair beside the couch. The girl was chilled, he noted with vague interest.

* * *

Rupert rose, took "Elinor's" shawl and laid it about the girl. She wrapped herself in it obediently. It looked bright on her, bright as a fire against her black hair, her deep-lashed shining eyes. Still she shivered. "I'm just nervous," she said. "Are you a lawyer?"

Rupert drew his hand across his eyes. The shawl dazzled them. "I am," he replied. "I am the son and the grandson of lawyers. As for carrying on the name, I leave that to younger, to master-minds."

"Then tell me," she said, leaning toward him. "If you've broken a law—if you're in danger—in terrible danger—"

"In danger," repeated Rupert, as she paused.

She nodded quickly. "It happened in another State. That's what I want to know. If you've broken a law—in another State—"

Again she paused, seeming to observe that he was not listening. Rupert was listening, but her words beat against his ears senseless as pebbles. "If you've broken a law. . . ." Elinor had condemned him. A few a law. . . ."

He had broken no law, yet hours before, she had sentenced him to death. Had killed him herself—with words—with words like knives.

In her bright shawl the girl seemed the core of a great fire . . . Her eyes—They were not really black. It was the lashes that made them look so dark. They were like—What was that gem of so limpid a brown that it looked yellow?.... Topazes. They were like yellow topazes.

"What is your name?" he asked.

She looked away. Presently she spoke.

"Hope Devine," she said.

Rupert pondered this. The sound had . associations. It was a phrase, and yet it might also be a name.

"Where are you from?" he asked.

Still she did not look at him.

"From the South," she said.

He pondered this also. South America? The South Seas?

"What town?" he inquired.

"El Paso, Down by the Border... by the Rio Grande."

"Tell me about yourself," he ordered.

Rupert's strange visitor gets a remarkable proposition tomorrow.

BY HELEN ROWLAND

SPRING LOVE NUMBER

There are summer resorts and winter resorts—but no spring resorts. That is because spring is always enchanting wherever you happen to be—if the man and the moon are there.

* * *

This is the time of year when a man takes the framed photograph of his wife off the book case in his office and places it on his desk—just for moral support.

* * *

At this dangerous season, husbands should be numbered, like automobiles, so that they could be traced when stolen—and the wreck recovered.

* * *

To the average woman, spring over is a table d'hote affair, in which she seldom has more than a choice between something solid that doesn't appeal to her, and something light and tempting that will probaby give her sentimental indigestion.

* * *

A microscope which can magnify 400,000 times has just been invented. What a comfort, if a woman could have one, through which to look at her ego after her spring romance has proved to be only a little rehearsal, in which she has been used as an understudy!

* * *

This is the month when marriageable men are like melons; there is a plentiful suppy of them—but most of them are either a little too green or have gotten spoiled before they were distributed.

* * *

Most of these so called "free love" affairs are lop-sided—with all the love sagging on one side and all of the grief on the other.

* * *

The styles in courtship will be practically the same this year as last. The man will merey drop a hint that he is thinking of marriage—and then wait for the girl to follow it up with a good, convincing selling-talk.

* * *

This spring, marriage will "happen" to a lot of men who think that they are girl-proof; and few of them will know, when they find themselves facing the altar, just how they got there.

Madge Conspires to Keep Mother Graham Ignorant of Mrs. Ticer's Arrival

KATIE'S MESSAGE from Mrs. Ticer galvanized me into action as if she had applied an electric battery to me. I knew that my neighbor would never have ventured to disturb me were her message not of the utmost importance, and I gave swift answer to it.

"Tell her I'll be down right away," I whispered, keeping a wary eye upon the balcony where my mother-in-law was sitting. "And go away quickly."

Katie scuttled away as a frightened rabbit might have done, and I heaved a deep sigh of relief as there was no sign from the balcony that my truculent mother-in-law had heard Katie's summons. For I knew very well that if she should discover Katie had summoned me in the face of her prohibition, I would have another domestic tempest upon my hands.

I closed the door softly, and going back into the room, tore off my lounging robe and slippers, and swiftly invested myself in daytime attire.

Explains Maneuvers

"Why all the hush-hush?" Lillian asked, smiling. "Katie looks like the fourth conspirator in a murder mystery."

"There's reason for her to look that way," I told her. "Mother Graham issued an injunction that we were not to be disturbed, and Mrs. Ticer, downstairs, is equally insistent that she must see me. I have told Katie that she is always to bring me a message from Mrs. Ticer the minute she receives it, so the poor girl—"

"Was between the devil and the deep sea," Lillian finished. "You may not have intended so trite a quotation, but it's what you meant, and probably shorter."

"Also to the point," I answered. "I haven't time now to explain why Mrs. Ticer's messages should be so important, but you'll know all the first chance I get. Just now I want you to do something for me."

"I've begun already," she said, getting out of bed and retrieving her clothing from the chair.

"Keep Mother Graham occupied up here if you can," I said. "I don't want her to see Mrs. Ticer, or to know she is here if it can be helped."

"Then," Lillian said sensibly, "don't go out of here until I do. Then she will have no reason to suspect you've been sent for. You won't be delayed long. I'm what is known in the theater as a quick change, you know."

I did know, and waited while she justified her words by rushing into her clothing with such celerity that she hardly kept me waiting at all. We walked out into the hall together and stood for a minute, debating our next course.

"We would better go over to see her together," Lillian whispered. "Then she won't suspect anybody called us. Leave it to me. I'll manage her. You just think up some plausible excuse for getting downstairs."

We walked over to the balcony with some trepidation, upon my part at least, but we found my mother-in-law busily engaged in making daisies for her granddaughter's afghan that she did not hear or see us until we were close to her chair.

She Is Startled

We did not mean to startle her, but when I spoke, the little wheel upon which she was making the daisies flew out of her hands and the ball of wool rolled along the floor.

"Goodness! how you startled me!" she said a bit crossly, looking up at us over her spectacles.

"I'm so sorry!" each of us said with one voice as Lillian dived for the wool and I retrieved the little wheel with a ruined daisy dangling from it.

"One daisy doesn't matter," she said as I ruefully extended it to her. "But what's the matter with you two? You didn't sleep very long."

I refrained from telling her that I had not slept at all during the time I was supposed to be napping, and Lillian jumped into the breach.

"I never sleep more than a couple of hours at a time, you know that," she said, "and when I once waken it is simply impossible for me to go to sleep again. Madge must have wakened at the same time, for I found her staring into space when I opened my eyes and we tumbled out together. Would it be too much bother to show me how to do those daisies now? I'm anxious to learn."

My mother-in-law beamed delighted approval and from a vantage point behind her back I signaled to Lillian my appreciation of her sacrifice—for such I knew it to be because of her dislike for needlework of any kind.

But I knew that my way now lay clear to see Mrs. Ticer without interruption. My mother-in-law in her role of instructor would be safe on her balcony for some time to come.

The Stars Say--

For Thursday, April 30

According to the auguries of the ruling planets this is to be a day of sudden surprise with consequent activities which may take one into far distant places or into entirely strange environs, with new interests and associations. While this move may be incited by an outstanding social or romantic affair, it will have expansive reactions on the business life and its ambitions. In all these functions and transactions safeguard papers and be alert to misrepresentation and slander.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of important and surprising change, with social or affectional affiliations taking one into new fields, bringing new connections and interests. Be cautious with papers, letters and documents, guarding against loss, misrepresentation scandal.

A child born on this day may be talented, bright, popular and given to romantic and affectional affairs that may be sensational.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Typhus Fever.

As a result of the winter's excessive snow, the spring rains, and early thaw, the authorities have been concerned with the many problems of public health and sanitation. These public servants are ever on the alert and it is largely because of their energetic efforts that epidemics of disease are prevented.

Many serious diseases arise as a result of filth and lack of sanitation. Measures normally enforced may become impossible by unexpected calamities, such as floods, tornadoes and earthquakes. When these occur there is often widespread infection by typhoid fever and other filth diseases.

Typhus fever was at one time one of the most dreaded diseases of humanity. It was prevalent everywhere, afflicting rich and poor alike. The disease still exists in certain parts of the world, especially in those sections where unhygienic conditions still exist.

It is caused by a germ found in rats. This germ is carried from one rat to another, by mice and fleas. It is then transmitted to humans by fleas, and may be passed from one person to another.

The victim has a high fever, severe headache, chills and prostration. Eruptions of the skin appear about the third to the fifth day of the disease. But before the skin symptom appears the sufferer complains of weakness, with loss of "pep," backache, and possibly severe abdominal pain.

In the beginning, this disease may be confused with typhoid fever. But the doctor recognizes it at once when he notes the appearance of the skin rash. This is reddish in color, changing to a purplish hue. It covers the entire body with the exception of the face.

Typhus fever is a serious disease because it lowers the resistance of the individual against other infections. The danger of such a dreaded complication as broncho-pneumonia or pneumonia is always present.

To prevent complications it is always wise to transfer the patient to a hospital. If this is possible to arrange, the patient will be assured of the necessary care. In addition, he will be shut off so that the disease will not be transmitted to others.

Fortunately, the form of typhus encountered in this country in recent years has been of a mild nature. But even so, these cases require careful nursing and daily medical attention.

Personal cleanliness is essential to rapid recovery. The patient should be bathed daily and have fresh bed clothing and linen. Every effort must be made to discard soiled linen and attention given to the handling of all contaminated bed clothes.

Yankees Shut Out Indians; Cincinnati Loses to Bees

RUFFING ALLOWS 4 HITS TO CLEVELAND; STRIKES OUT THREE

Greenberg, Goslin Get Homers as Tigers Defeat Senators, 8-1.

By The Associated Press

The eastern teams are off to a good start in the campaign against their rivals from the west, where both major league pennants wave.

The first intersectional brushes of the season over, the eastern clubs find themselves with five victories, against one for the clubs from the inland cities.

The world champion Detroit Tigers downed the Washington Senators 8-1 yesterday to record the lone victory for the west. In the National league the Pirates went down before the Phillies 9-7 and the juvenile Reds were defeated 5-2 by the Boston Bees. In American league encounters, the Yankees shut out the Indians 2-0, the Red Sox beat the White Sox 11-8, and the Athletics defeated the Browns 4-2.

Three fine pitching performances were turned in with Charley Ruffing, the big Yankee flinger, topping the other with a four-hit shutout over the Indians. Ruffing pitched perfect ball for five innings, Billy Sullivan getting the first safety off him in the sixth. He struck out three and did not allow a single base on balls.

Harry Kelley, the 30-year-old rookie of the Athletics who pitched a three-hitter against the Red Sox a week ago, let the Browns down with six bingles and two runs. Lefty Joe Sullivan, making his first start of the season for the Tigers, held the Senators to eight hits and kept the situation under control at all times.

Hank Greenberg got his first homer of the year as the Tigers lambasted two Washington twirlers. Goose Goslin also hit for the circuit.

Cy Blanton Routed

Cy Blanton, sensation rookie of last season, was knocked from the box for the fourth time this season as the Phils downed the Bucs. He lasted only three and two-thirds innings. Old Tom Zachary started for the Phillies but was shelled from the mound after five and one-third innings.

The Red Sox murderer's row took kindly to the offerings of four Chicago pitchers getting 16 hits with Jimmie Foxx hitting his fifth homer of the year. Billy Werber made one of the most sensational catches of the season when he ran down the stairs of the dugout and with one hand on the roof, speared a fly with the other.

Ray Benge, pitching for the Bees, held the Reds hitless for five innings. The Bees made 14 hits off the slants of Paul Derringer in eight innings.

Rain and wet grounds caused postponement of the Giants-Cards and Dodgers-Cubs games.

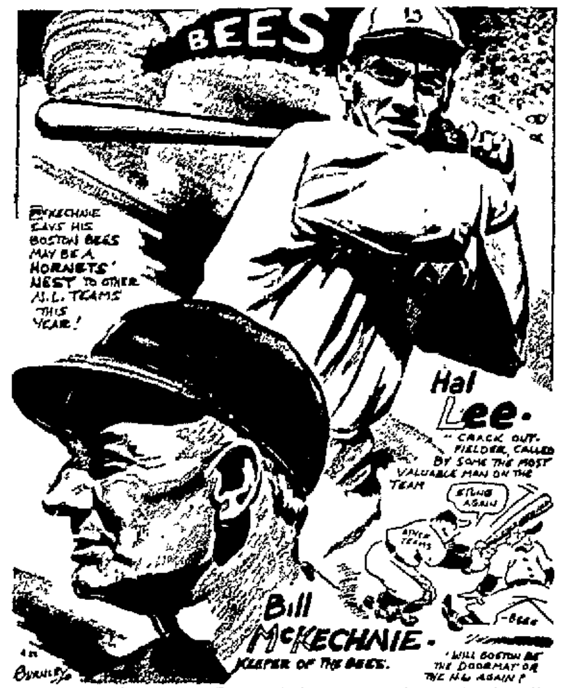
Bees May Become Hornets Nest in National League



BEES
McKECHNIE SAYS HIS BOSTON BEES MAY BE A 'HORNETS' NEST' TO OTHER N.L. TEAMS THIS YEAR!
Hal Lee.
"CRACK OUTFIELDER, CALLED BY SOME THE MOST VALUABLE MAN ON THE TEAM
STUNG AGAIN

Bill McKECHNIE.
KEEPER OF THE BEES.
'WILL BOSTON BE THE DOORMAT OF THE N.L. AGAIN?
Bunny

THE erstwhile Boston Braves, now bearing the new title of Bees, were generally consigned to the cellar position in the preseason forecasts of the omniscient baseball scribes, but Wise Will McKechnie, their erudite boss, casts a dissenting vote on this score.

The shrewd Scot who is the Keeper of the Bees reminds you that a Boston outfit that seemed no stronger on paper than than the current team finished fourth two years ago. Last season the demoralized Braves were a bad last, with the ownership in a turmoil and the managerial situation complicated by the presence of Babe Ruth.

Now, with McKechnie back in full control, and the franchise straightened out financially, the rejuvenated Bees may turn out to be a hornets' nest to the other National league clubs.

Lopez, Benge and Cuccinello, additions from Brooklyn, should help considerably. Wally Berger, always one of the leading home-run smackers of the loop, is a powerful hitter and a pretty good outfielder.

Then there is Hal Lee, crackerjack outfielder rated by many close critics as a better man than Berger and the most valuable player on the team. Fast, heady and aggressive, a dangerous man at the plate and a ball hawk in the field, Lee is really one of the topnotch gardeners of the Frick loop.

Don't forget, also, that McKechnie is considered by some to be the brainiest pilot in the majors. Those Bees may not have lost their sting, at that.

KANSAS CITY BLUES HAND RED BIRDS 7-11 DEFEAT AT COLUMBUS

St. Paul Makes It Four Wins in a Row by Spanking Louisville.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 29—Regardless of where Kansas City finishes in the American Association race, the Blues this season are going down as one of the most courageous clubs ever to represent Kansas City in the circuit.

They kept up their habit of coming from behind yesterday, scoring four runs in the third and five more in the sixth to beat Columbus 11-7 after the Red Birds had compiled a five-run lead. The victory gave the Blues a record of nine wins and two defeats on their first eastern invasion, in which they climbed to the top of the standings.

St. Paul made a clean sweep of the Saints' four-game series with Louisville, taking the final tilt 9-1 behind the eight-hit pitching of Glenn Spencer. The Colonels played without their manager, Burleigh Grimes, who was suspended because of a run-in with Umpire O'Brien last Sunday.

Indianapolis trimmed the champion Minneapolis Millers 5-4 by staging a four-run eight inning rally topped off by Johnny Riddle's slashing single which drove home the winning marker. Bill Bean, Millers' pitcher, held the Tribe to four hits and one run up to the eighth, when the Indians got four straight hits, a long fly and Riddle's safe clout.

Milwaukee and Toledo were rained out.

Brevity Most Feared Horse in Derby List

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29—Wayne Wright, jockey, and J. E. Widener's Brevity form the feared combination for the sixty-second running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

Brevity is feared because of his great speed. Wright because he not only ranks among the leading riders, but he's on a winning streak. Jockeys say that when a rider is hot, he's mighty tough to stop. Already the 21-year-old Rexburg, Ida., blond veteran has won three stakes and more than $150,000 this year.

"Why shouldn't I feel confident," asked Wright. "He's beaten everything that's opposed him this year and in a manner that left little to be desired."

That just about tells the belief of horsemen and laymen alike, as they thronged into the city today. Except for a scattered few, they went no farther than Brevity when asked to name their selection for the Derby.

The complexion of the race was changed some, as the result of yesterday's developments, but Brevity was not affected.

Mrs Silas B. Mason's He Did stepped into the picture more seriously by whipping Mrs. F. C. Mars' Sangreal and Grand Slam from the Bomar stable in the final Derby trial of one mile. W. S. Kilmer's Ned Reigh was listed as a doubtful starter as the result of developing a high fever following his trip from New York.

Landis Shelves Broadcast Of Major League Games

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 29—The minor leagues today had won the opening round in their fight against the broadcasting of major league baseball games, but there'll be no decision in the "air battle" until the major leagues hold their joint meeting next December.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, ruled yesterday that "pending further notice all major and minor leagues and clubs will refrain from making any additional commitments arrangements or authorizations for radio broadcasts of baseball games."

Landis refused to commit himself as to whether the ruling meant broadcasts would be banned next season.

William Harridge, president of the American League, said "the protest by the minor league clubs did not concern broadcasts by big stations directly from major league parks so much as it did broadcasts of major league games by telegraphic report from smaller stations in minor league territory. The practice has grown and something must be done to protect the minors."

Landis said minor league clubs playing night ball felt broadcasts helped their attendance. Those playing in the afternoon, however, object strenuously to the broadcasts, he said.

BILLIARD EXPERT TO APPEAR HERE FRIDAY

Allen Hall, Exhibitionist, Rated Among "First Ten" Three-Cushion Cuists.

Allen Hall of St. Louis, Mo., rated as one of the world's "first ten" three-cushion billiard experts will perform for Marion cue enthusiasts at the Marion Billiard Parlor at 118 West Center street, Friday night. The exhibition, to begin at 9:30 o'clock, is presented through the program of the National Billiard association of America.

The youthful three-rail star will offer a billiard exhibition, display of fancy shots, and devote a full hour to instructing players.

Hall has appeared in every world three-cushion championship tourney since 1925. He has finished in the runner-up position twice and once tied for second place.

The St. Louis luminary's first leap to fame came in 1924 when he won the eastern amateur three cushion championship, establishing a high run of 16 and a best game record for amateur competition of 44 innings. Born in St. Louis in 1900 he was first initiated into the game when he received a billiard table for Christmas when 11 years old. An all-around athlete, he has played basketball, football and baseball, including a two years' record as shortstop on a Missouri semi-pro nine.

DEISEL TEST

Englishman To See How Fast New Auto Can Go.

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 29—A measured mile on the Bonneville salt flats was made smooth as a table today to see how fast a Deisel-powered automobile can go.

Capt. George Eyston was getting set for the test he'll try at dawn Thursday.

It will be the Englishman's first speed run since he arrived a week ago with a troupe of mechanics and relief drivers at the saline expanse 120 miles west of here.

At Wendover, a desert village near the flats, Captain Eyston made final preparations but no predictions. "I don't know what she'll do," he said of his new car, "I've never tried her out."

He explained, however, the unofficial "top" for Diesel-powered machines is 136 miles an hour.

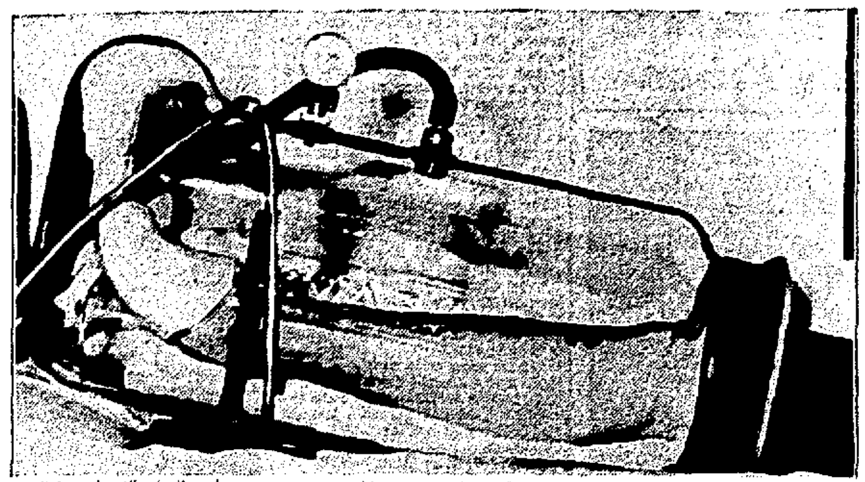
"GLASS BOOT" USED TO SAVE SCADDING'S FEET



A "glass boot" similar to one shown here was used by physicians in an attempt to save the feet of Charles Alfred Scadding, rescued after being buried alive for 10 days in a Moose River, N. S., gold mine. After using the boot a few days physicians at Halifax, N. S., said Scadding's feet had improved so much that it was hoped surgical interference would be unnecessary. This boot was developed by Dr. Louis S. Herrmann of Cincinnati as a means of inducing circulation. (Associated Press Photo.)

Musician Known in City On Convention Program

One of the outstanding artists on the three-day program of the fifty-fourth annual convention of the Ohio Music Teachers' association to be held here May 5, 6 and 7, and one in whom there is a great deal of local interest, is Alberto Bimboni, composer and conductor, of New York City, brother-in-law of Mrs. Victor E. Dombaugh of 440 East Church street.

Mr. Bimboni will come to Marion Sunday and will be the guest of Mrs. Dombaugh through the convention. He will conduct master classes in repertoire and opera, and with Dr. John A. Hoffman, dean of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, will conduct a voice forum on the advisability of giving opera in English, on the convention program.

Mr. Bimboni's career as a director and composer has brought him recognition in highest musical circles throughout the country. Included in his most recent work is his "Mass in E Flat Major," written in modern style, which was sung for the first time at the pontifical mass at St. Patrick's cathedral in New York City on Christmas day, last year.

Mr. Bimboni came to America from Florence, Italy, his birthplace, to prepare and direct with Giorgio Polacco, Puccini's opera, "The Girl of the Golden West," which was presented first in New York City and later taken on tour. For several years he directed the opera at the Columbia broadcasting studios, resigning this to become associated with Madame Sembrich and De Gogorza in the Curtis Institute at Philadelphia.

For several years he conducted the Philadelphia Grand Opera his work including two distinguished performances of "Madame Butterfly" when the famous Japanese soprano Hitzi Koyke gave her initial performance in this country as Madame Butterfly. The cast also included Nelson Eddy and Helen Jepson.

In describing the presentation, "Musical America, a musical publication, said the following of Mr Bimboni's work in directing "Madame Butterfly:" "Alberto Bimboni made a most successful bow with the company as conductor, reading the glowing Puccinian pages with fervid recognition of their melody."

Mr. Bimboni is now a member of the faculty of the Juilliard Graduate School, and this coming season will again be on the faculty at Curtis in connection with Juilliard. He is conductor of the famous Philadelphia Orpheus society, a position he has held for a number of years. His compositions include the opera "Winona," which was given its premier by the Portland, Ore. Opera company and was later presented several times in Minneapolis. In 1928 the American Opera society of Chicago awarded him the David Bispham Memorial medal.

His work this summer will take him to Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., where he will direct opera throughout the season.

SET GOOD EXAMPLE FOR THE CHILDREN

Practice of "Charity Begins at Home" Found To Be Good Training.

BY BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

There are many people in the world who like to bolster their own feeling of superiority by constant criticism of others. Generally they do this because they are unsure of themselves, and in the end the practice becomes a habit.

As far as the individual critic is concerned it is quite all right. He hurts only himself by his attitude, for his comments are soon discounted or not believed by others, and it is his own popularity which suffers. But the father or mother who indulges in the sport of picking friends and neighbors to pieces because he believes in "facing facts" or "is not blinded by affection" is very apt to reap the harvest of his sowing in his children.

Criticism is very easy to make and the child who hears it incessantly is apt to develop a contempt for his fellow man which will do him no good. He learns early to distrust his neighbor, and instead of meeting him half way ready to look for the best in him, is apt to be suspicious, and, looking for faults, to find them.

The only way to be liked is to like. It is human nature to try to be what one seems to others. Too much blind trust in others may at times prove disillusioning, but the child must learn the lesson for himself. He is far less likely to be disappointed if he expects good of people than if he expects evil. An occasional misplacing of faith is part of the experience of life, and will not hurt him.

The less criticism there is of others in the home, the more likely a child is to develop an out-going and confident approach to life. "Charity begins at home," has more meanings than the one usually read into it.

SPINACH TOPS BABY VEGETABLE MENU

At One Year Child Also Can Have Squash, Celery, Beets.

Green vegetables, cooked and mashed through a strainer, should be started in the sixth month and given once a day at the 2 p. m. feeding just before the nursing or with the bottle feeding. Give spinach three times a week, as it is the best vegetable for the baby. On the other days he may have carrots, chard, new green peas, fresh green lima beans, fresh asparagus, string beans, young beet greens, or cooked lettuce. Begin in the sixth month by giving one teaspoonful of mashed vegetable once a day and increase the amount fairly rapidly to one tablespoonful by the seventh month, two tablespoonfuls by the eighth month, and three tablespoonfuls by the ninth month. From this time on give three tablespoonfuls daily. When the baby is one year old he may have also summer squash, Hubbard squash, celery, beets, cauliflower, kale and cabbage.

WAIT - - -
16TH COMING
FRIDAY

PARENT RESPONSIBLE FOR UNRULY CHILD

Coddling of Baby Interferes With Proper Rearing and "Spoils" Him.

Well-meaning but overindulgent and overanxious parents may be startled to be told that their treatment of their babies is interfering with their health, happiness, self-reliance and social development of the children they love so devotedly.

If your child cries all day, gets mad and kicks and screams, spits out the food he does not like, or begs to be put to bed, there is certainly something wrong with his training. If you pick him up when he cries some day because you are busy and tired and feel that you must stop his crying at all costs, your clever little baby says to himself, "Hurrah, I was the boss that time! I can be boss next time," and your trouble has begun!

If you always give him what he wants, especially when he makes himself disagreeable about it, he will not be happy long. But if you help him to form good habits for instance, by feeding him at exactly the same hour every day and at no other times, letting him wait until the right time even if he cries, so that his stomach learns to wait, and letting him sleep after every feeding, his mind will learn that he can not get things by crying.

It's a queer thing, but children crave attention so much that if they can get it in no other way they will get it even though they know that punishment will follow. Of course, the way to cure children of this unpleasant tendency is to show them we are pleased when they do nice things, for if they see that they can get attention by being good they will be good, and they will be busy and happy, too.

MEN ARRESTED HERE SENTENCED

New Jersey Pair Serving Time As Embezzlers

Two New Jersey men, Thomas Naylor and Arthur J. Lewis, arrested by Marion police last December, are now serving sentences in the New Jersey state prison at Trenton, according to word received by the police department from prison officials.

They were arrested here on investigation when police became suspicious of their actions. Nearly $2,000 in cash was found hidden in their luggage. Investigation revealed they were wanted in Toms River, N. J., where Lewis had been employed in a hotel, and was alleged to have been $2,500 short in his accounts.

Naylor was sentenced to serve from a year and a day to a year and six months and Lewis was sentenced to from two to three years on charges comparable to embezzlement in Ohio.

New York Style Police Wanted on Columbus Force

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 29—Members of the municipal civil service commission got themselves in quite a quandary today about "how big is a policeman?" and finally decided to write to New York City to settle the question.

Chairman Earl W. Baird, who started the discussion by observing that he could see no reason why a tall, thin man, or perhaps a short one, should not make a good officer, said revision of the department's 20-year-old regulations to gain more "streamline model" policemen was probable. It all depends on the standards set for Gotham's "finest."

The old rules give detailed specifications requiring a man of certain height and weight to have a chest so broad and a waist to correspond. The minimum height is five feet, nine inches, with a weight of 150 pounds. There is no maximum limit on either height or weight.

Police Chief John Dunn said that he personally believed smaller men often were "very efficient," and hated to see them barred.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

LIMA LOVER SHOOTS WOMAN AND SELF

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., April 29—A lover's quarrel, Police Chief Ward Taylor said, prompted Leonard Leppla, 42, to shoot Mrs. Emma B. Adrian, 35, six times today and then turn a gun on himself when faced with arrest.

Mrs. Adrian and Leppla were taken to a hospital, where physicians held little hope for their recovery.

Chief Taylor said Leppla, a World war veteran, entered a restaurant where Mrs. Adrian was employed and after chasing her about the establishment, wounded her six times.

Leppla ran from the restaurant into an alley where he was confronted by Patrolman John Gast. Then Leppla shot himself in the abdomen.

OFFICE OF GARAGE LOOTED BY THIEF

$3.84 Taken from Register at Perry Motor Co.

Loot of $3.84 in money was taken from the Perry Motor Co. office at 203 South Prospect street, by a burglar who is believed to have hidden in the garage when it was closed last night. The theft was discovered early today by Jack Albert of Cherry street, service manager of the garage, when he found a rear door standing open.

The door, usually bolted and locked from the inside, was the only method of exit discovered by Mr. Albert. The loot was taken from a cash register which had been pried open, garage employes said. Police investigated the burglary but were unable to discover any signs of forced entrance to the building and it was supposed that the burglar hid in an automobile stored there when the garage was closed last night. John H. Perry of 759 Bexley avenue, manager of the garage, reported the burglary to police.

With the Candidates

* * * * * *

This group of sketches is one of a series being published by The Star to acquaint its readers with candidates for county and district offices whose names will appear on the May 12 primary ballots.

CANDIDATES FOR DISTRICT COURT

Voters in Marion and 15 other counties will nominate party candidates for one of the three judgeships of the Third district court of appeals at the May 12 primary.

Counties that make up the appellate district are Marion, Allen, Auglaize, Crawford, Defiance, Hancock, Hardin, Henry, Logan, Mercer, Paulding, Putnam, Seneca, Union, Van Wert and Wyandot.

Judge William Klinger, whose term is expiring, is unopposed for renomination on the Democratic ticket.

Judge Klinger formerly was common pleas judge of Allen county for two terms and served that county as prosecuting attorney for two years. He was a member of the state utilities commission of Ohio for four years. He and Mrs. Klinger, parents of two children, live in Lima, the permanent home of the appellate court.

Fred L. Carhart, member of the law firm of Carhart, Warner & Carhart, is one of two candidates for the Republican nomination for the appellate judgeship.

$1,000,000 Hammer Blow Cleaves Jonker Diamond

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 29—A million dollar hammer blow was described by a jubilant diamond cutter yesterday after he had split the 726-carat Jonker diamond into three pieces.

Lazare Kaplan, describing the first step of cutting the world's largest diamond, said it was "like a very difficult engineering problem and a very delicate surgical operation combined."

Kaplan studied the gem's cleavage planes for six months and then went away for three days of trout fishing to steady his nerves for the momentous hammer blow. A false blow might have caused fissures in the stone or shattered it into a hundred pieces.

The cleavage took place successfully at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Kaplan's midtown office.

Harry Winston, Fifth avenue diamond merchant who bought the stone for resale, recalled that Joseph Asscher suffered a nervous breakdown after successfully splitting the Cullinan stone, the only other great diamond ever cleaved.

Kaplan's 23-year-old son, Leo, held the wedge while his father struck it with a brass hammer. They were the only persons in the room. After it was over, Kaplan said, he "rushed to a telephone and told my wife."

As an uncut stone the Jonker diamond, found by an impoverished South African farmer on Jan. 16, 1934, was insured for $1,000,000. Winston said underwriters refused to insure the cleaving.

The diamond was split after Winston had failed to find a buyer for it as a single piece. He said it would be cut into one stone of 165 carats and eleven smaller pieces, which he hopes to sell as a $2,000,000 necklace.

Before it was split, the diamond was about the size of a hen's egg.

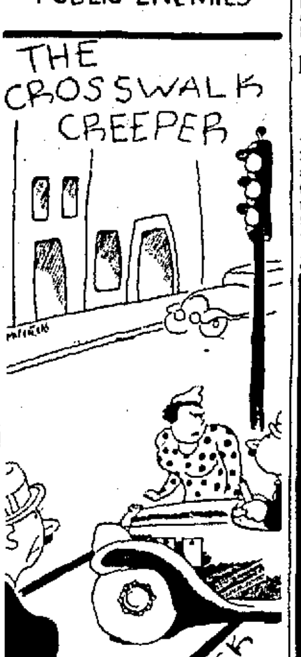
PUBLIC ENEMIES



Not so innocent as one might think is this candidate for "public enemy" of the highway dishonors.

By inconsiderately edging his car across the safety lines of cross-walks at street corners, the Cross-Walk Creeper forces pedestrians into danger zones. Many serious accidents result.

Good drivers are considerate of others—they obey the law by stopping back of the cross-walk.

Daily Pattern for Home Use

BY ANNE ADAMS

DAINTY RUFFLES ADD SOFTNESS TO EASILY-MADE DAYTIME FROCK.

"Ruffles? Absolutely!" says Anne Adams, "especially when they're combined with a bit of fullness at the skirt." And you can be sure that this smart daytime frock is going to lead a double active life, for Anne Adams has planned it so well that it may be worn all day—lounging on the porch or strolling "downtown" for afternoon shopping. A cape sleeve and yoke cut in one piece are easy to sew and attractive to see, while pert buttons accent the raglan shoulder line. The semi-fitted waist is nipped in with tucks and drawn close with a half-way belt. Choose a gay, printed percale, Swiss, or dimity and have the ruffles in contrasting organdy.

Pattern 4006 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 takes 2 7-8 yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Order our new Anne Adams pattern book and learn how easily you can make a smart summer wardrobe that's just your style! The latest frocks, suits, blouses; beach and vacation clothes; bridal outfits. Lovely clothes for children, too. Smart styles for stouts. And a full picture-story of summer fabrics and accessories. Price of book 15 cents. Book and a pattern together, 25 cents.

Address orders to The Marion Star, Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y.

STOCKS STAGE SECOND SLUMP

Several Lose 1 to 4 Points While Others Drop More; A. T. & T. Down.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 29—Bearish sentiment strongly dominated the stock market today, bringing losses of 1 to 4 points in many leading issues and larger in a few others.

American Telephone, with a decline of around 7 points, was a conspicuous loser. A number of 1936 lows were made. The closing tone was weak. Transfers approximated 1,850,000 shares.

Active losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, J. I. Case, Deere, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Columbian Carbon, Allied Chemical, Western Union, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. Isolated gainers included McIntyre, Dome Mines and Cerro De Pasco.

Bonds were as irregular as stocks. Commodities developed no definite trend. Foreign currencies were a trifle mixed in terms of the dollar.

Financial quarters read with interest the weekly review of "Iron Age" which estimated current steel ingot production at 69 per cent of capacity, an increase of one point over the previous period.

The survey referred to a "strong diversified demand" as acclerating the upward trend.

Running along with steel, electric power consumption in the week ended April 25 was reported by the Edison Electric Institute to have shown a more than normal expansion.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions the French franc and sterling were unchanged at 6.58½ cents and $4.93⅞, respectively.

U. S. STEEL REPORTS PAYROLL TONNAGE UP

Taylor Says First Quarter Operations Best Since Early Part of 1931.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 29—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel Corp., following the directors' meeting yesterday disclosed that first quarter operations had struck the best average since the first three months of 1931.

He also said that pay rolls had jumped 15 per cent over 1935 period to $69,250,055 and that the number of employes had risen 4.8 per cent to 198,260.

Directors declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on preferred stock, same quarterly rate which has prevailed since January, 1933, when the dividend was cut from $7 a year.

Taylor said, "New business since Jan. 1 has been gradually expanding. Bookings during first quarter exceeded tonnages the first quarter of 1935 by 25 per cent.

"In April to the 23d the tonnages have continued to expand. Present operations, based on shipments made, exceed 60 per cent of capacity."

The corporation reported net income of $3,376,304 for the first quarter after interest, depreciation, depletion, overhead expense on iron ore and other charges. This compared with net income of $5,326,417 after year-end adjustments preceding quarter and a deficit of $2,173,801 first three months last year.

First quarter net earnings equaled 94 cents a share on 3,001,511 shares of $7 cumulative preferred stock, compared with $1.48 a share previous quarter.

METHODISTS DRAFT SOCIAL SERVICE PLAN

New York Bishop Uncertain as to Course; Others Hint Attack on Profit System.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 29—Two days before the opening of the Methodist Episcopal quadrennial conference, leaders of the Methodist federation for social service gathered today to draft a program for presentation to the conference delegates.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell of New York, president of the federation, said he knew only that he was to preside at the one-day convention of the federation, and had no idea what program would be approved for presentation Friday to the general conference.

Other spokesmen declared the federation would demand that the Methodist Episcopal church take an active part in settling social and economic questions of the day.

They indicated that their program would be based on the avowed purpose of the federation —"to abolish the profit system in order to develop a classless society based upon the obligation of mutual service."

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE WINNERS BANQUETED

Dinner and Program Given by Members of Smart Class of Epworth Sunday School.

Approximately 100 members and guests of the Smart Sunday school class of Epworth M. E. church attended a dinner and entertainment program at the church last night which marked close of a class membership drive.

The entertainment feature of the evening was presentation of a magic act by Dr. Carroll Ritchey, Marion optometrist and amateur magician.

Dr. Ritchey offered a varied program of illusions. Even the proverbial rabbit made an appearance at the command of the magician but under the spell of a few muttered phrases was quickly transformed into a bantam rooster. Dr. Ritchey was assisted by J. P. Riblet.

Harry A. Galenes, manager of the Oakland theater and member of the Columbus Magic club who obtained Dr. Ritchey's act for the class, was a guest. Other guests included Rev. F. O. Markley, Probate Judge Oscar Gast, Warren Bull, George McMurray and Ralph E. Carhart.

The membership drive was conducted by class members divided into two teams—the "east side" and the "west side." The losing west side team staged the dinner and entertainment. Francis Pickerel captain of the losers, and Dr. J. T. Gruber, leader of the winning team, gave brief talks.

Emil Sweney, president of the class, in a brief talk lauded the class teachers John Bain, J. B. Ellis and T. A. O'Leary.

Members of the entertainment committee were Walter S. Guthrie chairman, Jay Gelbaugh and R. L. Shrock. Mr. Guthrie introduced Dr. Ritchey. Harold Hall, vice president of the class, was chairman of the business meeting.

Group singing was led by J. B. Ellis, accompanied at the piano by William Dowler. The dinner was served by members of Circle No. 1 of the Ladies' Aid society, with Mrs. Rose Helwig in charge.

U. S. PREPARES DROUTH OFFSET

Wallace Says Government Will Act To Ease Results If Rain Fails.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 29—Despite week-end rains in the southwestern dust bowl, described as helpful, Secretary Wallace reported yesterday the federal government was preparing itself for action in the event of another great drouth this year.

"May and June will be critical months," he said. "Sunday's rains in the southwest are hopeful signs, but whether they mark the beginning of a week or two of rain, I decline to guess."

To Ease Effects

Discussing in a radio address the government's efforts to study long-range weather forecasting, Wallace said "we cannot yet stop drouth but we can make the consequces easier to bear."

Noting a sharp drop in the wheat market yesterday, Wallace observed that "there is still a chance for a fairly large wheat crop in the southwest."

"A few more rains like those of Sunday," he said, "will insure greater production — and lower prices."

While Wallace was speaking, AAA officials went ahead with plans for special concessions to farmers in the dust bowl area who participate in the new soil conservation program.

To Give Subsidies

These concessions, an official said, will consist of allowances of subsidies for soil conserving practices which are not to be the basis for payments in other regions.

Reviewing first reports from the field, Tully A. Cobb, director of the southern region, predicted the AAA would obtain from 80 to 90 per cent cooperation of southern farmers in the conservation program. He said:

"I am surprised and pleased. We had estimated about 80 per cent cooperation. In some counties it will be more than 90 per cent."

Eighty-four families in Marion county and 92 in Morrow county have been aided by the federal government's resettlement program since relief work of this nature was started two years ago, according to records made public today by C. E. Sleeth, rehabilitation supervisor for the two counties. So far this year families in Marion county have been aided to the extent of $25,000 and Morrow county families have been loaned $20,000.

The rehabilitation program is designed to help relief families become self supporting by maintaining them on farms. The government loans are made to enable these farm families to purchase seed, feed, livestock and farm equipment.

The anniversary of the resettlement administration is being celebrated Thursday throughout the nation. One of the principal features will be a radio address by Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, administrator. The broadcast will be at 10:15 p. m. over the National Broadcasting Co. network. Earlier in the day resettlement operations in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri will be discussed at 4:45 p. m. by R. C. Smith, regional director, and members of his staff. This program will originate at station WMAQ and will go out over other NBC stations.

The relief program was started two years ago under the supervision of the Ohio relief commission and then was known as the family recovery program. Later the work was taken over by the federal government as the rural rehabilitation program and last July became the rural resettlement program.

Mr. Sleeth has been supervisor for Marion and Morrow counties since the first of the year.

SUBSTITUTION FOR PROFIT OR--

By Henney & Cooper

There are two major reasons for substitution of ingredients in compounding of physicians prescriptions, one is larger profit, and the other, an adequate stock of drugs.

For instance, salicylate of soda is produced from two sources, one known as "true" is derived from the oil of wintergreen; the second termed "synthetic" is a coal tar product. The former can be taken, when necessary, over long periods of time with beneficial effects, while the synthetic, costing but a fraction of the true, and therefore allowing much greater profit, often causes stomach disorders.

Conscientious druggists will never substitute the artificial for the real. Have your prescriptions filled by one of them.
